

Matters Involving Metropolitan

Sierra Club v. Cal. Dept. of Water Resources (consolidated with Department of Water Resources v. All Persons Interested, etc.) (Sacramento County Superior Court)

On August 5, 2022, the judge in the Delta Conveyance Project revenue bond validation cases held a case management conference to establish a briefing and hearing schedule for the next stage of litigation before setting a trial date and briefing schedule later this year. The court ordered that any motions for summary judgment or summary adjudication and any motion for new trial be filed by August 25, 2022, with a hearing date set for November 18, 2022. The court also set the next case management conference for December 9, 2022 to establish a trial date and briefing schedule if it denies the opponents' motions for new trial and summary judgment.

As previously reported, on August 6, 2020, the Department of Water Resources (DWR) adopted a set of resolutions authorizing issuance of revenue bonds to finance both the design, environmental review and planning costs, as well as costs to construct a new Delta conveyance facility. The same day, it filed a validation action seeking a judicial declaration that it has the authority to adopt the bond resolutions. Dozens of parties filed answers raising an array of affirmative defenses in opposition. Five public water agencies, including Metropolitan, filed answers supporting DWR's case.

On October 27, 2020, Sierra Club, Center for Biological Diversity, Planning and Conservation League, Restore the Delta and Friends of Stone Lakes National Wildlife Refuge (Sierra Club) filed litigation challenging DWR's adoption of the bond resolutions under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), alleging that DWR could not adopt the bond resolutions until it completed CEQA review of the Delta Conveyance Project. Multiple parties also raised CEQA as an affirmative defense in DWR's validation case.

The two cases were consolidated and last fall, after a set of cross-motions for summary judgment on CEQA, the trial court ruled in DWR's favor, meaning Sierra Club's CEQA claims and all CEQA affirmative defenses in the validation action failed. Because the trial court judge was appointed to the Court of Appeal for the Third Appellate District, the cases were delayed until the Honorable Judge Mennemeier was assigned this spring.

In the current round of dispositive motions, Sierra Club has moved for a new trial on its CEQA claim, seeking summary judgment in its favor asserting the prior judge misinterpreted CEQA. In the alternative, it has moved for reconsideration of the prior judge's rulings based on new facts disclosed in DWR's Draft Environmental Impact Report for the Delta Conveyance Project published on July 27, 2022.

North Coast Rivers Alliance (NCRA) has moved for summary judgment on its Delta Reform Act and public trust doctrine affirmative defenses. DWR has moved for summary adjudication of those two affirmative defenses in NCRA's and other opponents' answers. Metropolitan and other supporting water contractors joined DWR's motion.

Lastly, the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association moved for summary adjudication seeking a ruling that the issue of whether future taxes used to repay any bonds issued per the bond resolutions are subject to Prop 13 is outside the scope of the current litigation.

A ruling after the November 18 hearing is anticipated before the next case management conference on December 9. If Sierra Club or NCRA succeed, that would end the trial court proceedings. If DWR prevails on its motion, it would eliminate two affirmative defenses from the merits briefing and trial to come. If Howard Jarvis succeeds, it may expressly exclude the validation of taxes that water contractors may adopt in the future to repay any bonds DWR issues for Delta conveyance from the ruling in this litigation.

Although Metropolitan has retained special counsel to assist, the Legal Department has performed a majority of the work representing Metropolitan to date.

In re Matter of The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (South Coast Air Quality Management District, Case No. 6101-3 – Regular Variance Granted)

As reported last month, a final hearing was held on August 31, 2022 before the South Coast Air Quality Management District (SCAQMD) to convert Metropolitan’s interim variance to a regular variance for its permit requirements for its emergency standby propane generator at Metropolitan’s Pleasant Peak telecommunication tower, located in a remote area of Orange County. The matter was on the consent calendar and was granted by the Commission. This provides Metropolitan with a variance from the annual 200 hour limit on operations in its permit to operate. The SCAQMD thresholds seek to limit criteria pollutant emissions. The generator is close to exceeding this threshold due to unexpected power outages on Southern California Edison’s system. The tower is necessary for operational communications for Metropolitan’s water delivery system. The variance will provide coverage through the end of the year.

Metropolitan staff is handling this matter, and will continue to monitor compliance with SCAQMD requirements.

Matters Impacting Metropolitan

EPA Proposes Designating PFOA and PFOS as CERCLA Hazardous Substances

On August 26, 2022, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed designating two of the most widely used per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS) -- perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) and perfluorooctanesulfonic acid (PFOS), including their salts and structural isomers -- as hazardous substances under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), also known as “Superfund.”

EPA is proposing this hazardous substance designation because evidence indicates that these chemicals may present a substantial danger to public health or welfare or the environment when released into the environment. If this designation is finalized, it will have three direct effects:

(1) releases of PFOA and PFOS at or above the reportable quantity of one pound or more in a 24-hour period will have to be reported to federal, state, tribal, and local authorities; (2) federal entities that transfer or sell their property will be required to provide certain notifications and covenants; and (3) the U.S. Department of Transportation will be required to list PFOA and PFOS as hazardous materials.

The proposed rule would also have several indirect effects, including allowing EPA to seek to recover cleanup costs for PFOA or PFOS contamination from a potentially responsible party (PRP) or to require such a party to conduct the cleanup. In addition, private parties that conduct cleanups consistent with the National Oil and Hazardous Substances Contingency Plan (NCP) could recover PFOA and PFOS cleanup costs from other PRPs. Under CERCLA’s strict (meaning it is without fault), joint and several, and retroactive liability scheme, any party who disposes of hazardous substances, even in minute quantities, and even if the disposal was legal at the time, may be considered a PRP and could be held liable for the entire cleanup of a site (when the harm caused by multiple parties cannot be separated).

(<https://www.epa.gov/enforcement/superfund-liability>.) Thus, the proposed rule could result in a significant increase in expensive and lengthy Superfund litigation. Moreover, the combined effect of the proposed rule and EPA’s recently published near-zero health advisories that recommend levels below available detection or treatment methods may further drive site-specific cleanup standards and associated costs for PFOA and PFOS. The White House Office of Management and Budget designated the proposed rule as “economically significant,” meaning that it is expected to impose costs of $100 million or more annually.

The five broad categories of entities potentially affected by the proposed rule include: (1) PFOA and/or PFOS manufacturers; (2) PFOA and/or PFOS processors; (3) manufacturers of products containing PFOA and/or PFOS; (4) downstream product manufacturers and users of PFOA and/or PFOS products; and (5) waste management and wastewater treatment facilities. Additionally, as EPA explains in the proposed rule, “PFOA and PFOS are widely detected in surface water samples collected from various rivers, lakes, and streams in the United States. Therefore, municipalities and other entities that use surface water sources for drinking water may face challenges treating and removing PFOA and PFAS from their finished drinking water. The most vulnerable drinking water systems are those in close proximity to sites contaminated with PFOA and PFOS” (footnotes omitted).

EPA will publish the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in the Federal Register in the next several weeks. Comments on the proposed rule must be submitted within 60 days after publication. After the close of the comment period, EPA anticipates issuing an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to seek public comment on designating other PFAS chemicals as CERCLA hazardous substances. Metropolitan staff will continue to monitor and will comment on EPA’s rulemaking process.

Technology Credit Union v. Rafat (California Court of Appeal)

The California Court of Appeal held that an employer may only obtain a workplace violence restraining order when a credible threat of violence is made that would cause a reasonable person to fear for his or her safety. Rafat had entered a bank and made a series of hostile statements to a bank teller and threatened to complain to a federal agency and file a lawsuit. The bank teller became scared for her safety and the bank obtained a restraining order against Rafat.

In reversing the restraining order, the court noted that Rafat’s conduct was rude but that he made no threat of violence. The court found that because Rafat had made no threat of violence, the objective reasonable person standard could not be met even if the bank teller was herself scared of Rafat. This case helps clarify California law on what an employer must show to obtain a restraining order against a threatening person in the workplace.
